Outside of work, she's an avid traveler, scuba diver, foodie, music lover, and unapologetic sci-fi geek. She's also known for her fierce Scrabble skills, her absolute dependence on morning coffee, and her firm belief that pizza deserves its own food group.

As a mentor, Tiffany is passionate about lifting others up and fostering growth. She approaches her relationships with a servant-oriented mindset—empathizing, building trust, instilling confidence, and challenging people to recognize their strengths. She encourages others to find or create spaces where they feel personally and professionally fulfilled. Early in her career, Tiffany played a key role in launching the first women's professional soccer league in the U.S., an experience that shaped her commitment to cultivating a culture of support, humility, high performance, humor, connectedness, and collaboration. She firmly believes in the power of advocacy and amplification. And she is always willing to be a sounding board or to step in to help someone cross the finish line.

Tiffany currently serves as Vice President at Sand Cherry Associates, where she leads technology transformations and new product deployments for some of the world's largest network operators. She also co-leads the company's annual Sand Charities program, which supports community causes nominated by Sand Cherry team members. Additionally, she is an owner of Sand Cherry's PMO Practice, overseeing initiatives to develop, train, and elevate program management professionals to ensure they are equipped to support mission-critical initiatives for Sand Cherry's clients.

Before joining Sand Cherry, Tiffany led teams at Comcast, launching groundbreaking products that redefined broadband and improved the customer experience. She also spearheaded programs for Qwest and Cox Communications, managed operations for a real estate investment trust, and supported the U.S. Naval Submarine Command. Tiffany received her Bachelors in Business Administration from the College of William & Mary, speaks Spanish and is a native of San Diego, CA. She currently resides in Denver with her husband, Gabe and co-parents her niece and nephew with her sister who lives 5 blocks away.
